Last month Keeping Up with the Huxtables hosted a contest along with African Pride in search of the Best "Worst Hair Experience". We know that so many Black women struggle with finding the right products and techniques to maintain their hair. We were interested to hear some of your stories.

African Pride was eager to give the winner of this contest a package of a variety of their hair care products. Check out how African Pride spends their time making products for African American Women of all textures of hair.
